

READY TO LET GO
AT ST. MIHIEL

One of the biggest American guns in position to open up the bombardment of the German lines.

The Yanks bringing up a huge French cannon, which they used throughout the battle with deadly effect.

Another view of the artillery preparations. The men of a camouflaged battery prepared to begin the party.
